CONFIRMED PROOF.

Residents of Barre Cannot Doubt What Has Been Twice Proved.

In gratitude for complete relief from aches and pains of bad backs—from distressing kidney ailments—thousands have publicly recommended Doan's Kidney Pills. Residents of Barre, who so testified years ago, now say their cures were permanent. This testimony doubly proves the worth of Doan's Kidney Pills to Barre kidney sufferers.

G. W. Brown, carpenter, of 11 Brook street, Barre, Vt., says: "Since I gave my first statement recommending Doan's Kidney Pills some eight years ago I have never failed to advise their use whenever occasion has arisen. I had strained myself and it affected my kidneys and weakened my back. I paid little attention to it at first, but my back kept getting worse and worse and there was considerable difficulty with the kidney secretions, which were highly colored and very annoying especially at night. I learned of Doan's Kidney Pills and procured a box at E. A. Drown's drug store. After I had taken them a few days I noticed the pain in my back was not so bad and the kidney secretions were becoming more natural. I continued using Doan's Kidney Pills until entirely free from my former troubles. Since that time I have used them on different occasions when I have suffered from slight attacks and always with success, and I have recommended them to others time and time again. In the case of a friend who was suffering from a bad case of kidney trouble the use of this remedy absolutely cured him."

For sale by all dealers. Price 50 cents. Foster-McBarnes Co., Buffalo, New York, sole agents for the United States. Remember the name—Doan's—and take no other.

Deadly Serpent Bites

are as common in India as are stomach and liver disorders with us. For the latter, however, there is a sure remedy—Electric Bitters, the great restorative medicine, of which S. A. Brown of Benningville, S. C., says: "They restored my wife to perfect health after years of suffering with dyspepsia and a chronically torpid liver." Electric Bitters cure the fever, malaria, biliousness, large back, kidney troubles and bladder disorders. Sold on guarantee by the Red Cross Pharmacy. Price 50c.

New England Notes.

The Rhode Island experiment station expresses the opinion that until a more satisfactory method of combating blight is discovered it will probably not pay to grow late varieties of potatoes in Rhode Island.

Professor Sanderson of the better farming special train through New England advised New Hampshire audiences that apple culture is their strong hold. He is sure there is more money in it ($50 an acre at least) for New Hampshire farmers than in anything else, provided they fertilize, spray and pack properly.

The present year is likely to be a record breaker in tobacco planting in the Connecticut valley. Almost all growers talk favorably of the crop, and the majority are planning to increase their area, remarks American Cultivator.

From experience at the Massachusetts experiment station it appears that the late southern dent corn, such as the Eureka, which has been much used in southern New England for silage purposes, is not as well suited to the latitude as the northern varieties that mature not later than the middle of September.

The Golden Eagle.
The average golden eagle weighs twelve pounds, is three feet from the tip of his bill to the tip of the tail and has wings of seven feet spread.

The Hungry Seal.
The seal's appetite is phenomenal. In captivity fifty or more pounds of fish being required daily by a single seal. After gorging himself he goes to sleep, floating on his back, with flippers folded, his head bobbing up and down upon the waves, as peacefully as upon a bed of roses.

Wild Oats.
The seed of the wild oats seems to be endowed with a sort of life of its own. Wild oats when held in the hand will move about in a manner that strongly suggests the motions of the larvae of certain insects.

Largest Navigable Stream.
The Mississippi and Missouri rivers combined form the longest navigable stream in the world.

Cloven.
Cloven was at first a tattooed person. In Britain and France the country people retained the habit of tattooing or of painting the faces in imitation of tattooing long after it had been abandoned in the cities.

Six Meals a Day.
Germans eat six meals a day—breakfast, "second" and "third" breakfast, dinner (after which the men take their noonday nap), "vesper" and an early supper, often followed on their return home by a later and more substantial meal.

The Tiger Lily.
The tiger lily is commonly considered an emblem of gaiety and levity. In some parts of India this flower is regarded with a superstition as akin to that felt for the animal from which it takes its name.

Bancroft's Life Work.
Bancroft devoted nearly thirty years to his "History of the United States," which is not a history of the United States at all, since it ends where the history of the country properly begins. Had the work been continued on the same scale down to the present, seventy-five or eighty volumes would have been required.

THE MORGAN HORSE.

The Federal Government Is Trying to Restore the Breed to Its Prominence As Being the Best All-Round Horse for America.

Lovers of horses the country over, but particularly the farmers and light harness drivers of New England, will follow with interest the results of the effort of the Agricultural Department to restore the Morgan horse to its former position of dominance. As a result of the craze (it was little short of that) for animals of heavier type, which Western horses were brought in to meet, the serviceable Morgan has been allowed to run out, until it has become increasingly difficult to secure for general use good specimens of the type that was the prevailing one in New England towns scarcely more than a generation ago. Now, however, the unfortunate results of this change of taste are being realized. It has been amply demonstrated by costly experience that weight and strength are not the equivalents of the hardness and all-round adaptiveness which are the distinguishing characteristics of the smaller Morgan.

These qualities, with intelligence and docility, made it pre-eminently the breed for the small farmer, who keeps only one animal for both farm and road work. No other American horse has shown the same recuperative vitality, the ability to travel spiritedly to church on Sunday morning after an arduous week of haying. No other, in short, has so thoroughly demonstrated its fitness for the responsible position of the only horse in the family. The Westerner which supplanted it was fitted to draw heavier loads on the level, but that was almost its only advantage, and strength did not mean endurance. Comparatively small powers of adaptation to varied conditions and demands prevented its perfect assimilation as a general utility horse such as the small farmer needs. The New England hills, moreover, and the short, sharp slope from the "lower meadow" to the barn, did not fit the imported animal's temperament. A creature built for routine, it contrasted poorly with the nimble, more versatile Morgan, whose brisk walk, even under load, gave evidence of its zest in work.

Nor was it merely as a farmhorse that the Morgan was esteemed. As a roadhorse for the business and professional man, not seeking speed primarily, but willing to move along briskly and always ready for a "brush" on the highway, it was highly prized, and as a "family horse" it was unexcelled, its docility being an important factor. Descending from Justin Morgan, foaled in 1793, it was no unimportant factor in developing the farmhorse in the East from the ungainly heavy-footed animal with which the coast farmers of fifty years ago were apparently content. Hardly is the development of any other means of locomotion, the trolley or the automobile, more striking than the progress that has been made in improving the character of the ordinary farmhorse. But in New England progress began to move in the wrong direction when the sturdy Morgan was replaced by the heavy but strength-wasting Westerner. And it is now the aim of the Government to correct the error that was made and to restore the type that was in danger of vanishing because of a too belated recognition of its merits.

At the Interstate Horse and Automobile Show held in Rutland, Vt., this week, there has been brought together one of the most complete collections of standard-bred Morgans that New England has seen for many years. Special efforts were made to have this breed well represented because of the Federal Government's desire to secure the most perfect types for breeding purposes at its experiment station in Burlington, for which the sum of fifty thousand dollars was recently appropriated. This reinstatement of the Morgan will rank as one of the conspicuous services of the Department of Agriculture—Providence Journal.

"The Gambler."
Don't forget the great Western comedy, "The Gambler," at the opera house Thursday evening, for the benefit of the Inter-city team. See adv. for cast.

Note what the press says of Miss Pauline Hammond and the great Western comedy, "The Gambler":

"Again last evening a large audience greeted the Pauline Hammond company at the Grand Opera House. 'The Gambler' a four-act drama, was given. Miss Pauline Hammond, the clever little southerner, came fully up to the expectations of the audience, and was an instant favorite from her first appearance. She gave a fine conception of the role of 'Bessie Fairfax.' She was repeatedly cheered. Clifford Whitman, as 'Jack Mason,' the gambler, proved himself an actor of ability and an earnest student of his art. His many appearances makes him a favorite. C. E. Oberlin, as 'Alexander Fairfax,' won high approval for his splendid work. Miss Ina May was very attractive, and was seen to advantage as 'Ethel Wayne.' Edwin Vickery, as 'Duncan Le Moyne,' showed himself to be an adventurer and a villain. Eva Mueller, as 'Mrs. Boag,' got a good reception from the audience. The specialties were very fine. The dancing of Mr. Parquette and the athletic work of Perry brothers was admired. The illustrated songs by Miss Pauline Hammond richly deserved the encomiums they received."

Enslaved by Law.
An edict of Charles IX. of France, dated 1563, made it a civil offense to offer any guest more than three courses at a meal. If a fourth appeared, the provider was liable to a fine of 200 francs, while the guests who partook of it could be called upon to pay the authorities 40 francs each.

Sauterers.
A saunterer is believed by some etymologists to have originally signified a man without hands, such a person naturally wandering to and fro in search of employment.

Bancroft's Life Work.
Bancroft devoted nearly thirty years to his "History of the United States," which is not a history of the United States at all, since it ends where the history of the country properly begins. Had the work been continued on the same scale down to the present, seventy-five or eighty volumes would have been required.
